Always on stage dancing, winning dance contests, doing dance theatre, and plays, it was only a matter of time before singing would complete her stage persona. Because of her stage experience, the transition from dancing on stage to singing was fairly easy and a welcome change. Therése began her singing career at the age of 15 with the Stockholm East Gospel Choir. After which she began taking singing lessons from world-renowned vocal teacher, Susanna Hultén.

In California, she also studied at the Musicians Institute perfecting her skill as a singer/songwriter and performer. As a dancer, Therése has had appearances in several music videos on MTV. She can also be seen on the ever-popular dance party television show Soul Train (USA) as a regular dancer. Because of Therése's versatility, she was 2003 cast with Ben Affleck in the TV-series "Push Nevada" for Touchstone Television, Hollywood/Los Angeles.
